THE BIG STORY

Sensex leaps 2,000 points, its best day in a year

Cheaper oil and a flood of foreign money lifted Indian shares on Thursday. Car makers and lenders led the charge. But read page 2 before you celebrate.

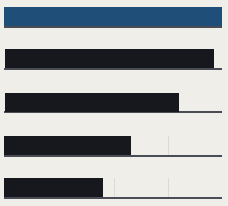

Thursday was a very good day on Dalal Street. The Sensex jumped 2,008.61 points, or 2.60%, to close at 79,310.01. The Nifty 50 rose 576 points, or 2.40%, to 24,536.60. Market tracker DSIJ called it the biggest one-day gain in the last year, and it was the sixth rising day in a row.

Three things helped. First, oil fell nearly 9% on Wednesday after the US elections, and India buys most of its oil from abroad. Second, foreign investors are pouring money in: on Wednesday alone they bought a net ₹7,284 crore of Indian shares, their biggest single-day purchase in three years. Third, Wall Street had rallied the night before.

Car makers did best: the Nifty Auto index rose 4.14%, with Mahindra & Mahindra, Maruti Suzuki and Tata Motors among the top gainers. Lenders were close behind, with Bajaj Finance and Shriram Finance leading the Nifty. IndiGo, the airline, gained 5.43%, because jet fuel is its biggest cost. Out of 3,723 stocks traded, 2,547 rose.

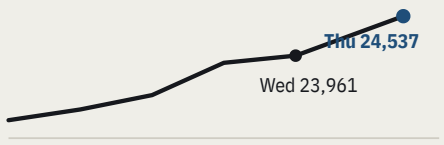

The catch: a few hours later, US shares crashed (page 2). Markets in Japan and Korea fell sharply this morning. Expect a rough start for India today.

ⓘ WHICH GROUPS ROSE MOST

The few losers included Media and Energy, plus ONGC and Coal India, which earn more when oil is dear.

WHAT THIS MEANS FOR YOU

If you own a Nifty index fund or a SIP, Thursday added a nice bump. Today may take some of it back. Big up-days and big down-days often come close together. The best move for a long-term investor is usually the boring one: keep your SIP going and don't check the price every hour.

VARSITY-STYLE EXPLAINER: WHY OIL MOVES THE SENSEX

India imports most of its crude oil and pays in dollars. When oil gets cheaper, India spends fewer dollars, the rupee strengthens (it did, to ₹94.64), prices of fuel-hungry things cool down, and companies that burn fuel, like airlines, paint makers and car makers, keep more profit. That's why those shares rose most.

COMPANY REPORT CARDS IN BRIEF

AUTOS

Mahindra grows 25%

M&M's revenue rose 25% to ₹57,553 crore and profit rose 25% to ₹4,588 crore for July–September. Its shares climbed about 6%.

STOCK EXCHANGE

BSE profit up 45%

The company that runs the Sensex earned ₹809 crore, up from ₹558 crore a year ago, as more people traded. Revenue rose 34%.

SHOPPING

Nykaa and Lenskart shine

Nykaa's profit tripled to ₹101 crore. Lenskart, the spectacles chain, more than doubled its profit to ₹227 crore on 36% higher sales.

THE BIG STORY

The AI party ends with a crash: Nasdaq's worst day since April 2025

One day after a big election rally, US shares fell hard. Chip makers were hit worst. The fear: the new Congress could slow down the giant data centres that power AI.

On Thursday the Nasdaq, the index full of tech companies, fell 5.52% to 24,315.00. The broader S&P 500 fell 4.36% to 7,353.73, and the Dow Jones lost 1,833.06 points, or 3.44%, to 51,523.06. That wiped out all of Wednesday's gain. All three had their worst day since April 2025, and all 11 sectors of the S&P 500 fell.

The Nasdaq is now in a correction, meaning more than 10% below its recent peak. AP puts the gap at 11.9%.

The worst damage was in chip makers, the companies whose processors run artificial intelligence. Micron fell 17.5%, AMD 17.3% and Nvidia 9.3%. Reuters says the Philadelphia chip index fell about 12%, its second-biggest fall on record. Nvidia alone lost more than $440 billion in value in a day, more than five times India's whole defence budget for this year.

Why? Democrats won Congress on Tuesday. Many voters are unhappy about AI data centres pushing up electricity bills. Texas's governor-elect said she wants to "stop what we are doing with data centers" until there are protections. Bank UBS estimates about 30% of the data centres planned for 2028 are at risk. If fewer data centres get built, chip makers sell fewer chips.

WHY SHOULD SOMEONE IN MUMBAI CARE?

This morning, Korea's market fell more than 8% and paused trading for 20 minutes, and Japan's Nikkei dropped into a bear market (20% below its peak), CNBC reports. Indian IT companies and anything linked to tech may feel the chill today. The good news for India: oil is still under $100, and India makes few AI chips, so it is less exposed than Korea or Taiwan.

JARGON BUSTER

WHO'S DOING WHAT, AND WHY IT MATTERS

THE BIG STORY · UNITED STATES & IRAN

Trump weighs new strikes on Iran: “You'll know soon enough”

After losing Congress over the war, the US president met his security team twice. Iran, meanwhile, sent a peace offer with seven demands.

The US–Iran war is in its ninth month, though large-scale fighting has paused. On Thursday President Trump said: “I would rather not destroy the rest of the country if possible, but maybe I will have to. You'll know soon enough.” Fox News, citing Axios, reports that US Central Command is preparing in case strikes resume, but has no new order.

PBS says Trump has three roads: a deal, pushed by envoy Steve Witkoff and Vice President Vance; more bombing, favoured by some officials and Israel's Benjamin Netanyahu; or keep squeezing Iran's economy with a naval blockade. Before the election, one official said the two sides were “80 percent” of the way to a deal.

Iran sent a formal nuclear proposal through Qatar on Thursday, Reuters reports via Fox. It comes with seven demands, including payment for war damage, an end to sanctions and the blockade, and a permanent end to the war. At sea, Iran says two tankers and a tugboat caught fire in the Strait of Hormuz, at least one after hitting an undersea mine.

TRUMP'S THREE ROADS

Options as described by PBS NewsHour

THE INDIA ANGLE

Iran says Indian ships stay exempt from its restrictions in the Strait of Hormuz, the narrow sea lane that much of India's oil passes through, SSBCrack reports. That matters: every new tanker fire raises insurance and fuel costs. Separately, India's foreign ministry says it is still pressing Russia, at “various levels”, to release Indian nationals serving with Russian forces, after External Affairs Minister S. Jaishankar met Russia's Sergey Lavrov at the G20.

THE SEVEN DEMANDS, IN SHORT

Pay for war damage	Lift sanctions and the port blockade	Free frozen Iranian money	Shrink US forces nearby	End the war for good

AROUND THE WORLD

RUSSIA & UKRAINE

Kyiv hit again

Russian drones and missiles struck Kyiv on Thursday. EU foreign policy chief Kaja Kallas said she hopes the new US Congress will keep backing Ukraine and press Russia harder.

Why it matters: Ukraine hopes the election shifts US support its way.

RUSSIA & IRAN

Iran's envoy meets Putin

Senior Iranian official Mohsen Rezaei met Vladimir Putin in Moscow with a message from Iran's Supreme Leader. Gas pipelines were discussed.

Why it matters: Iran is looking for friends as US pressure grows.

FRANCE

260 protests over prices

Unions held more than 260 protests across France over living costs and wages, with 70,000 police deployed. “Everything's going up except wages and pensions,” they said.

Why it matters: high fuel prices from the war are hurting far beyond the Gulf.

ISRAEL

Netanyahu short of a majority

After Israel's 27 October election, Netanyahu's bloc is reported at 53 of 120 seats, short of the 61 needed. The Joint List says it will back rival Gadi Eisenkot.

Why it matters: Israel's next leader shapes the Iran war.

AMERICAS

Paraguay's president resigns

President Santiago Peña stepped down after a bank collapse, Al Jazeera reports.

Why it matters: a rare case of a leader quitting over a financial scandal.

DIASPORA

A first for Los Angeles

Nithya Raman won the race for mayor of Los Angeles, becoming the city's first South Asian mayor, according to Al Jazeera.

ALL THREE THE BIG STORY

₹3 lakh crore of weapons, made in India, by 2029

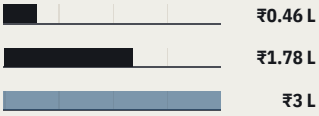

Defence Minister Rajnath Singh set a big target in Jaisalmer: make far more military kit at home, and sell much more of it abroad.

"We aim to achieve defence production worth ₹3 lakh crore and defence exports worth ₹50,000 crore by 2029," Rajnath Singh told a committee of MPs meeting in Jaisalmer to review the forces' modernisation plans.

The numbers show how far India has come. In 2014-15, Indian companies made defence equipment worth ₹46,429 crore. By 2025-26 that had grown almost four times, to a record ₹1.78 lakh crore. Exports grew even faster: from under ₹2,000 crore in 2014 to about ₹40,000 crore now. India sells things like BrahMos missiles, artillery shells, radars and patrol boats.

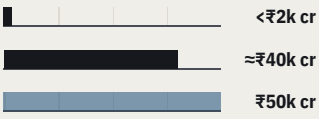

Reaching ₹3 lakh crore in three years means growing by about a fifth every year. The money is there: this year's defence budget is ₹7.85 lakh crore, and ₹2.19 lakh crore of it is for buying new equipment.

Eight new corvettes

Indian Defence News reports the ministry signed contracts worth ₹53,866.50 crore with shipyards GRSE and Goa Shipyard for eight next-generation corvettes, small fast warships. An IIT Madras start-up, AstraYAN, is reported as the lowest bidder for the engines on GRSE's share.

AIR FORCE FUEL IN THE SKY

Tankers on the shopping list

The IAF plans to convert Boeing 767 airliners into flying fuel tankers, idrw reports. It now has six IL-78 tankers and two leased KC-130s, too few for a large fighter fleet. Separately, HAL's chief met the new Air Chief Marshal, Ashutosh Dixit.

DRDO LIFESAVER

A ₹35,000 fire suit

IIT Delhi and DRDO built a 2.2 kg firefighter suit that resists heat up to 1,300°C. It's expected to cost ₹30,000–₹40,000, against ₹1–3 lakh for imported suits.

Four goals in 13 minutes: India come back to beat Japan and keep the crown

Trailing at half-time in Mohali, India's men turned the final upside down to win their record sixth Asian Champions Trophy.

For 40 minutes it looked like Japan's night. Kazumasa Matsumoto scored early with a reverse flick, a backhand shot, and India went into half-time 0–1 down in front of a home crowd at the Olympian Balbir Singh Stadium in Mohali.

Then the floodgates opened. In the 42nd minute, captain Harmanpreet Singh slipped a clever penalty-corner pass to Shilanand Lakra, who levelled the score. Dilpreet Singh spun and shot to make it 2–1 in the 50th minute. Jugraj Singh drag-flicked a penalty corner home in the 53rd, and Vivek Sagar Prasad slid the fourth through the goalkeeper's legs in the 55th.

India won every league game and thrashed South Korea 8–1 in the semi-final. As defending champions, they keep the title, their sixth, more than any other country.

The Reading Room

THREE PIECES OF GREAT WRITING, AND WHAT TO LEARN FROM THEM

Today's theme follows the news: AI, booms and busts. One long explainer on where AI is going, one short essay on what knowledge lasts, and one Varsity chapter on the middlemen of the market.

01

TECHNOLOGY | 40 MIN READ

"The AI Revolution: The Road to Superintelligence" by Tim Urban, Wait But Why

In one line: progress speeds up, so the future will arrive faster, and stranger, than our gut tells us.

Written in 2015, long before ChatGPT, this famous two-part essay explains AI with stick-figure drawings and jokes. Urban's big idea is the "Law of Accelerating Returns": each new technology helps build the next one faster. He walks from today's narrow AI (good at one thing, like chess) to a possible general AI that is good at everything. After a day when AI chip makers lost hundreds of billions of dollars, it's a fine reminder of why investors got so excited in the first place.

STEAL THIS TRICK

Draw the hard idea. Urban turns graphs and abstract ideas into silly hand-drawn pictures. A rough sketch often explains more than a perfect paragraph.

waitbutwhy.com/2015/01/artificial-intelligence-revolution-1.html

LIFE & MONEY | 6 MIN READ

"Expiring vs. Long-Term Knowledge" by Morgan Housel, Collaborative Fund

In one line: most news expires in a day; spend more of your reading time on ideas that will still be true in ten years.

Housel splits knowledge into two kinds. Expiring knowledge is like today's market close: it grabs attention but is useless by next week. Long-term knowledge is how people behave with money, fear and greed, which hardly changes. He argues we read far too much of the first and too little of the second. (Yes, a newspaper is recommending this. Pages 6 to 11 are our attempt at the long-term kind.)

STEAL THIS TRICK

Split the world in two. A simple "this kind vs. that kind" contrast gives readers an instant mental sorting box they can use themselves.

collabfund.com/blog/expiring-vs-long-term-knowledge

MONEY · INDIA | 10 MIN READ

"Financial Intermediaries" by Zerodha Varsity

In one line: between you and the stock market sit brokers, depositories and banks, and each has a clear job.

This chapter of Varsity's first module explains who actually handles your money when you buy a share: the stockbroker who places the order, the depository (NSDL or CDSL) that keeps your shares safe in electronic form, and the bank that moves the cash. It follows yesterday's chapter on regulators. Read it, and the BSE result on page 1, a company earning more because more people are trading, will make complete sense.

STEAL THIS TRICK

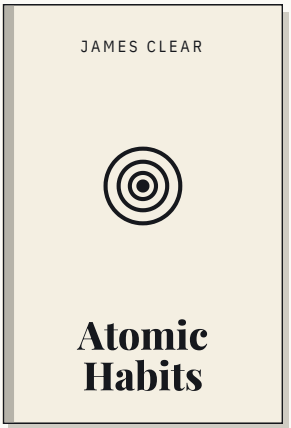

Follow one transaction. Explaining a system by tracing a single purchase from start to finish is clearer than listing every part.

The Book Review

TODAY: SELF-HELP

Genre: Self-help / habits
Published: 2018
Length: about 320 pages
Style: short chapters, lots of examples
Read it: one chapter with morning tea

REVIEW · ATOMIC HABITS

Get 1% better every day, and let time do the rest

Most self-help books shout at you to change your whole life. This one whispers: change something tiny. James Clear's idea is that small habits, like reading two pages or doing one push-up, add up the way compound interest does. Get 1% better each day for a year and, by his maths, you end up about 37 times better.

The heart of the book is a simple recipe, the Four Laws. To build a good habit, make it obvious (put the book on your pillow), attractive (pair it with something you enjoy), easy (start with two minutes) and satisfying (tick it off a calendar). To break a bad habit, flip each one: hide the phone, make it a hassle, and so on.

His best point is about identity. Instead of "I want to run a marathon", say "I'm a runner", and every small run becomes a vote for that person. Some ideas are borrowed from older research, and later chapters repeat themselves. But it is clear, practical and genuinely useful from the first chapter.

"You do not rise to the level of your goals. You fall to the level of your systems."

Atomic Habits, chapter 1 · In plain words: a good daily routine beats a big wish.

THREE BIG IDEAS FROM THE BOOK

Tiny gains compound

1% a day feels like nothing, until a year later it's enormous. Same maths as a SIP.

The two-minute rule

Shrink any new habit until it takes two minutes. "Read 30 books" becomes "read one page".

Change your surroundings

Willpower runs out; your room doesn't. Put fruit on the counter and the biscuits out of sight.

READ IT IF YOU…

- keep starting new routines and dropping them
- like practical advice you can try tonight
- want a book you can finish in a week

THE TAKE · OUR OPINION

Two days, two moods: why markets swing so wildly

On Wednesday, Wall Street celebrated the election. On Thursday, it panicked about the very same election. India's Sensex had its best day in a year just hours before the US had its worst in 18 months. Nothing about the companies changed that much overnight. What changed was the story investors told themselves.

That is how markets work in the short run: they swing between hope and fear. In the long run, they follow something slower and steadier, which is how much money companies actually earn. Mahindra growing its profit 25% matters more over ten years than any single day's mood.

Our view: a dramatic headline is a reason to read, not a reason to sell. Big drops are part of the deal for anyone who invests in shares.

This is the Gazette's opinion, not financial advice.

MONEY IDEA OF THE DAY: COMPOUNDING

The book on page 7 says 1% better a day makes you 37 times better in a year (1.01 multiplied by itself 365 times ≈ 37.8). Money works the same way, just slower.

₹10,000 growing 12% a year becomes about ₹31,000 in 10 years, ₹96,000 in 20 and almost ₹3 lakh in 30. The last decade adds the most. That's why starting early beats picking the perfect day to invest.

DID YOU KNOW?

Wall Street had a real wall

The street is named after a wooden wall Dutch settlers built in the 1600s to protect New Amsterdam, now New York.

Mumbai was seven islands

Over a century and a half of land reclamation, starting in the 1700s, joined them into the city we know.

In the 1600s, Croatian soldiers wore knotted scarves. The French copied them and called them "cravats", after the Croats.

Butterflies taste with their feet

A murder of crows

That's the old English name for a group of crows. Crows can also recognise individual human faces.

Ten Words for Today

LEARN THEM, THEN USE ONE BEFORE DINNER

1 Euphoria noun · yoo-FOR-ee-uh

A feeling of intense, sometimes over-the-top happiness.

"Wednesday's euphoria on Wall Street lasted exactly one day."

2 Capitulate verb · kuh-PICH-oo-layt

To give up and stop resisting.

"Tech investors finally capitulated and sold."

3 Bellicose adj. · BEL-i-kohs

Eager to fight or start a war.

"The bellicose speeches made oil traders nervous."

4 Vicissitude noun · vi-SIS-i-tood

An unwelcome change of circumstances, usually one of many ups and downs.

"Every investor learns to live with the vicissitudes of the market."

5 Sagacious adj. · suh-GAY-shus

Wise, with good judgement.

"Her sagacious advice: keep the SIP running."

6 Resurgent adj. · ri-SUR-junt

Rising again after a quiet or weak period.

"A resurgent Indian team scored four goals in 13 minutes."

7 Contrarian noun · kon-TRAIR-ee-un

Someone who deliberately does the opposite of what most people are doing.

"The contrarian bought chip shares while everyone else sold."

8 Prudent adj. · PROO-dunt

Careful and sensible, thinking about the future.

"It's prudent to keep six months of expenses in savings."

9 Nonchalant adj. · non-shuh-LAHNT

Calm and relaxed, not showing worry.

"He was nonchalant as the Nasdaq fell 5%."

10 Candour noun · KAN-der

The quality of being open and honest, even when it's uncomfortable.

"The vice president spoke with unusual candour about the election."

TODAY'S CHALLENGE

Skill of the Day

GETTING DRESSED · UNDER A MINUTE ONCE YOU'VE PRACTISED · DIFFICULTY: EASY

GETTING DRESSED · AS PROMISED YESTERDAY

How to tie a necktie: the four-in-hand knot

The easiest, most common tie knot. It's slightly lopsided, which is part of its charm, and it works with almost any shirt and occasion.

WHAT YOU'LL NEED

A collared shirt, top button done	A tie	A mirror	Two minutes of practice

1 Drape it

Lift your collar and hang the tie around your neck, seam facing in. Put the wide end on your right, hanging about a hand's length (roughly 30 cm) lower than the narrow end.

2 Cross over

Bring the wide end across the front of the narrow end, from right to left.

3 Wrap behind

Pass the wide end behind the narrow end, back to the right side.

4 Cross over again

Bring the wide end across the front once more, right to left. This makes a horizontal band. Hold it loosely with a finger.

5 Up through the neck loop

Push the wide end up from underneath, through the loop around your neck.

6 Down through the front

Now slide the tip down through the band you were holding at the front, and pull it through.

7 Tighten and check

Hold the narrow end and gently slide the knot up to your collar. The tip of the wide end should just touch your belt buckle. Too short or too long? Untie and change step 1. Fold the collar down.

THE FOUR KEY MOVES

Shown as you see it in a mirror. Blue arrows show where the wide end goes.

⚠ SAFETY FIRST

- Never tie it so tight you can't slip a finger between collar and neck; it can press on blood vessels.
- Take a tie off, or tuck it into your shirt, near moving machinery, food mixers or printers. It can get caught and pull you in.
- Don't let small children play with ties or cords around the neck.

PRO TIP

Pinch a small dent, called a dimple, just under the knot before you tighten it in step 7. It instantly looks sharper.
