THE BIG STORY

Foreigners are buying India again, and the market keeps climbing

Overseas investors put about ₹6,837 crore into Indian shares on Tuesday. On Wednesday morning the market pushed higher still, even though early signals had pointed down.

Tuesday was a big day. The Sensex jumped 1,225 points (1.62%) to close at 76,917.85, right at its highest point of the day. The Nifty 50 rose 370 points (1.58%) to 23,810.85. That was its fourth winning day in a row.

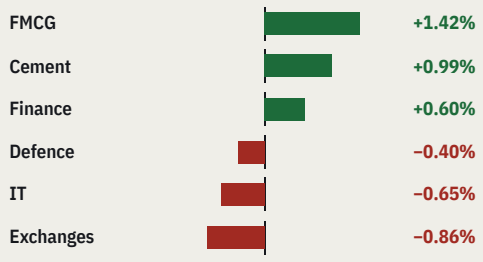

A large part of the push came from abroad. Foreign investors (called FIIs or FPIs) bought about ₹6,837 crore more of Indian shares than they sold on Tuesday, according to provisional exchange data. They have been net buyers on five of the last six trading days.

Early on Wednesday, a signal called Gift Nifty suggested a weak start. It was wrong. By 9:30 am the Sensex was up another 384 points at 77,301.59 and the Nifty was up 0.46% at 23,921.20. Cheaper oil helped: Brent crude slipped to about $102.71 a barrel, roughly 13% below last Friday's six-month high of $118.

Everyday-goods companies led again. ITC rose 2.8% and the FMCG group 1.4%. Hospital chains Max Healthcare (+3.1%) and Apollo Hospitals (+1.4%) also gained. Software firms fell: Infosys, TCS and HCL Tech were all down nearly 1%. BSE Ltd, which runs the Bombay Stock Exchange, slipped 1.8% after a strong run.

A note on timing: these Wednesday figures are from morning trade. The closing numbers will be in tomorrow's paper.

ⓘ THE VARSITY CORNER: HOW FOREIGN MONEY MOVES OUR MARKET

1. Money looks for a home	2. India looks good	3. They buy in bulk	4. Prices rise	5. It can reverse
Big global funds hunt for the best returns around the world	Cheaper oil and strong company profits make Indian shares attractive	Thousands of crores flow in, often into the biggest companies	More buyers than sellers lifts the Sensex and Nifty	If the mood changes, the same money can leave just as fast

ⓘ JARGON BUSTER

FII / FPI
Foreign institutional (or portfolio) investor: a big overseas fund, pension plan or bank that buys Indian shares.

DII
Domestic institutional investor: Indian mutual funds and insurers. They often buy when foreigners sell, and vice versa.

Gift Nifty
A version of the Nifty traded early in the morning at GIFT City, Gujarat. It hints at how the market might open, but it's only a hint.

India VIX
The "fear gauge". It measures how jumpy traders expect prices to be. Higher means more nervous.

WHAT THIS MEANS FOR YOU

Foreign money is like a big wave: it lifts prices quickly when it comes in, and pulls them down when it goes out. It's a good sign that global investors like India right now. But if you invest through a monthly SIP, you don't need to time these waves. The SIP buys a little every month, whether the tide is high or low.

THE BIG STORY

The AI chip boom isn't over yet

AMD and Arista Networks reported record sales on Tuesday evening, and their shares jumped. Meanwhile, Americans voted in an election that could change the rules for big tech.

AMD, the world's second-best-known maker of computer chips after Nvidia, sold a record $13.4 billion worth of chips from July to September. That beat its own forecast. Sales to data centres, the giant computer warehouses that run AI, nearly doubled. AMD expects about $17 billion in sales over the next three months.

Its shares rose more than 6% in trading after the market closed. Arista Networks, which makes the high-speed network switches that link AI computers together, rose about 11% after its sales grew 58.5% to roughly $3.66 billion. Super Micro Computer gained 8%.

Earlier, during normal trading, the Nasdaq rose 0.83% to 25,372 and the S&P 500 rose 0.36% to 7,569. The Dow Jones fell 0.38%. Apple dragged it down after warning that rising memory-chip costs would squeeze its profits over Christmas.

Not every company had a good night. Palantir fell 1.65% even though its sales nearly doubled, because new contract signings grew only 6%. Software firm Amdocs crashed about 43% after cutting its forecast over a dispute with T-Mobile.

US MARKETS ON TUESDAY

AFTER-HOURS MOVERS, TUESDAY

Prices at about 7 pm New York time. Bars are scaled to fit.

WILL THE US RAISE INTEREST RATES IN DECEMBER?

74.5% chance, says Polymarket

The Fed meets on 9 December. Prices in the US are rising 3.7% a year, well above its 2% goal.

WHY SHOULD SOMEONE IN MUMBAI CARE?

When US interest rates go up, money tends to flow out of countries like India and back to America, where safe bonds suddenly pay more. The US 10-year bond already pays close to 5%. That's why Indian traders watch every word from the US Federal Reserve. The AI chip boom matters too: Indian IT firms are racing to win AI work, and their share prices move with the mood in Silicon Valley.

WHO'S DOING WHAT, AND WHY IT MATTERS

THE BIG STORY · AMERICA VOTES

Democrats take back both houses of Congress

Two years into President Trump's second term, voters handed his opponents control of the US Senate and House of Representatives, ABC News projects.

America held its midterm elections on Tuesday. ABC News projects that the Democrats will win enough seats to control both the Senate and the House. Before the vote, Republicans held the Senate 53 to 47 and had a narrow House majority.

The night's headline was in Maine. Democrat Troy Jackson beat Senator Susan Collins, a Republican who had held the seat since 1997, leading 54% to 46% with 83% of votes counted. In Texas, normally safe for Republicans, Democrat James Talarico led Ken Paxton 54% to 44% with 90% counted, though the race had not been formally called. In Ohio, Sherrod Brown led Jon Husted 50% to 46%.

Not every race went one way. Republican Kurt Alme was projected to win Montana's Senate seat. In Michigan, Democrat Abdul El-Sayed was projected to keep a Senate seat for his party, and Jocelyn Benson was projected to become governor.

Before the vote, Trump had said, “For some reason, the sitting president doesn't win the midterms.” Final seat totals were still being counted at press time.

THE SENATE: WHO NEEDS WHAT

Exact final split not yet known.

WHAT CHANGES WHEN THE OTHER PARTY CONTROLS CONGRESS

1. Laws need both	2. Budget power	3. Investigations	4. Trade & tariffs	5. More gridlock
A US law must pass both the House and the Senate	Congress decides how the government spends money	Committees can question officials and demand documents	Congress can push back on the President's trade moves	Expect slower, harder deals for the next two years

AROUND THE WORLD

IRAN & THE US

Peace plan on the table, mines in the water

Iranian negotiators left talks in Doha, Qatar, with a draft proposal for a US deal now circulating. Qatari mediators expect a reply within about 36 hours. Iran's Revolutionary Guards said two tankers hit mines in the Strait of Hormuz.

Why it matters: a deal could reopen the strait and bring oil prices down for India.

ISRAEL

Netanyahu wants to strike; Trump wants to talk

The two leaders spoke on 1 November. Israel's leader is reportedly pressing for strikes on Iran right after the US vote, while Trump wants negotiations to play out, Axios reported.

Why it matters: the next few days could decide between war and a deal.

RUSSIA & UKRAINE

Hackers send fake air-raid alerts

Both countries said their emergency alert apps were hacked, sending false warnings. The US also approved selling Ukraine 500 Patriot air-defence missiles for about $2.1 billion.

Why it matters: cyber-attacks are now part of everyday war.

INDIA ANGLE

Pakistan plays peacemaker

Pakistan's army spokesman says it is “cautiously optimistic” about its role helping the US and Iran talk. China's foreign minister also urged a political solution.

Why it matters: a bigger diplomatic role for Pakistan in the Gulf is something New Delhi watches closely.

INDIA ANGLE

Doval in Vietnam, ocean talks in Delhi

National Security Adviser Ajit Doval held talks in Hanoi. In New Delhi, the Navy is hosting a three-day Indo-Pacific dialogue with France, Indonesia, Japan and the Maldives taking part.

Why it matters: India is building friendships across Asia's seas, partly to balance China.

CRYPTO

Binance refills after a $6.3-bn hack

The world's largest crypto exchange says it has replaced 90% of the stolen assets. The FBI blames North Korean hackers.

Why it matters: if you hold crypto, exchange security is a real risk.

DRDO THE BIG STORY

A quiet missile launch off the Odisha coast

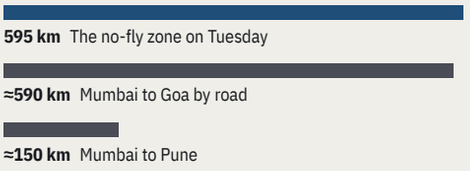

India test-fired a short-range missile on Tuesday. The government hasn't said which one, but the clues point to Pralay.

On 3 November, a short-range tactical missile developed by DRDO, India's defence research agency, was flight-tested off the coast of Odisha. Officials said the launch was successful and that the test data is being studied. They did not name the missile.

Defence watchers have been reading the clues. Before the test, India issued a NOTAM, a warning that keeps aircraft out of a stretch of sky, covering about 595 km. People living within 2 km of the launch site were reportedly moved away for safety. The defence news site idrw says this fits Pralay, a DRDO-built short-range missile designed to strike targets on the battlefield. There is no official confirmation yet.

Short-range missiles like this matter because they can be fired quickly from trucks, and are hard to stop. They give the Army a way to strike back fast without using fighter jets or long-range missiles.

HOW FAR IS 595 KM?

595 km The no-fly zone on Tuesday

≈590 km Mumbai to Goa by road

≈150 km Mumbai to Pune

The warning zone is usually larger than the missile's actual flight path. Road distances are approximate.

S-400 AIR SHIELD: DELIVERIES SO FAR

4 of 5 delivered. The last is expected in January–February 2027, Hindustan Times reports, citing government sources. The 2018 deal with Russia was worth about $5.43 billion.

ALL THREE EXERCISE

India and the US practise disaster relief

The fifth edition of Tiger Triumph opened on 2 November at Visakhapatnam. It's a planning exercise in which Indian and American forces practise how to respond together to a cyclone, flood or earthquake. India's National Disaster Response Force (NDRF) took part for the first time.

ARMY · NAVY NEW OFFICES

Army chief to leave South Block

Army chief General Dhiraj Seth and his senior team will move from the historic South Block to the new Shaurya Bhavan in Delhi Cantonment by the end of November, ThePrint reports. The Navy chief, Admiral Krishna Swaminathan, moves to Sena Bhavan.

NAVY DRONES AT SEA

A robot warship wanted

The Navy is seeking an armed, uncrewed boat over 120 feet (about 37 m) long, for spying and attack missions, idrw reports. No number or price has been given.

AIR FORCE FUTURE JET

Bids in for India's stealth fighter

All three shortlisted groups have reportedly sent technical bids to build prototypes of the AMCA, India's planned fifth-generation stealth fighter.

NAVY FRIENDS AT SEA

INS Sahyadri trains with Korea

The frigate exercised with the South Korean destroyer ROKS Munmu the Great off Busan, practising helicopter operations and moving together.

DEFENCE WORDS DECODED

DRDO
Defence Research and Development Organisation: the government lab network that designs India's missiles, radars and more.

NOTAM
"Notice to Airmen": an official warning that tells pilots to avoid an area, often before a missile test.

S-400
A Russian-made long-range air-defence system that can shoot down planes, drones and missiles.

Uncrewed surface vessel
A boat with no one aboard, steered remotely or by its own computer.

WHY IT MATTERS

At the Delhi Defence Dialogue this week, Defence Minister Rajnath Singh said making critical weapons in India is essential for military readiness in this century. Look at today's page: a home-grown missile, a home-designed stealth jet and a home-built robot boat. India still buys big systems like the S-400 from abroad, but the direction is clear. Also this week: the Coast Guards of India and Sri Lanka met in Mirissa to plan joint search-and-rescue and pollution response.

Bowlers set it up, Gill and Kohli steady the chase

India bowled New Zealand out for 185 at Eden Park. Then Rohit Sharma fell for a duck, and the captain and Kohli went to work.

Rain delayed the toss in Auckland, but once play began India were in charge. Shubman Gill chose to bowl, and Arshdeep Singh struck early, having Will Young caught by Shreyas Iyer for 9. He finished with 4 wickets for 70. Gurnoor Brar took 3 for 44, and Anshul Kamboj was miserly, conceding just 22 runs in 10 overs.

New Zealand were all out for 185 in 40.2 overs. Tim Seifert top-scored with 38, after being dropped early by Naman Dhir, and the No. 11 Blair Tickner hit a lively 34. India needed only 3.72 runs an over to win.

The chase had a shaky start: Rohit Sharma was out for a duck (zero). But Gill and Virat Kohli settled things. At the last update we could confirm, Kohli was 29 not out and Gill 27 not out.

At press time we could not confirm the final result. We'll print it tomorrow.

One about life, one about work and one about money. Each comes with a one-line summary and a writing trick you can borrow.

LIFE | 14 MIN READ

"This Is Water" by David Foster Wallace

In one line: the most useful skill in life is choosing what you pay attention to.

This is a speech Wallace gave to graduating students at Kenyon College in 2005, and it has been passed around ever since. He opens with a tiny story: two young fish swim past an older fish, who says, "Morning, boys, how's the water?" The young fish swim on, and one turns to the other and asks, "What the hell is water?" His point is that the most important things around us are often the hardest to notice.

Then he takes you to the most boring place he can think of: a crowded supermarket checkout at the end of a long day. Your natural reaction is irritation, as if everyone is in your way. But you can choose to think differently about the tired people around you. That choice, made again and again, is what he calls real freedom.

STEAL THIS TRICK

Open with a short story that sounds silly but carries the whole idea. The fish joke takes ten seconds, and the reader remembers it long after the rest.

WORK | 15 MIN READ

"Do Things That Don't Scale" by Paul Graham

In one line: great businesses start with founders doing small, slow, hands-on work that no big company would bother with.

Graham, who co-founded the startup programme Y Combinator, says new companies don't take off by themselves. Founders have to push them. That means recruiting users one by one, almost going door to door, and making the first few customers ridiculously happy. He tells how the Airbnb founders went to New York and visited their hosts in person, even taking better photos of their apartments.

His advice works far beyond startups. Whether you're starting a side business, a newsletter or a new team at work, the first users are won by hand. The clever system can come later.

STEAL THIS TRICK

Make your title sound like advice that breaks a rule. Everyone is told to "scale". A title that says the opposite makes people curious enough to click.

MONEY | 8 MIN READ

"Personal Finance Math, Part 1" by Zerodha Varsity

In one line: compound interest, where your earnings start earning too, quietly beats simple interest by a lot over time.

This short chapter uses one easy example. Borrow ₹1,00,000 at 10% for five years. With simple interest you pay ₹50,000 in interest. With compound interest it's ₹61,051, because each year's interest is added to the amount and then earns interest itself. The same maths works for you when you invest. It also explains CAGR, the standard way to describe yearly growth.

STEAL THIS TRICK

Put two numbers side by side. "₹50,000 vs ₹61,051" explains compounding better than a paragraph of theory.

REVIEW

One old fisherman, one giant fish, and a lesson about never giving up

Santiago is an old Cuban fisherman who has gone 84 days without catching a single fish. The other fishermen think he's finished. Only a young boy, Manolin, still believes in him.

On the 85th day, Santiago rows far out into the Gulf Stream, alone. A huge marlin, longer than his boat, takes his bait. What follows is a battle of three days and nights: the old man's hands cut and cramping, the fish pulling his little boat further out to sea. He talks to the fish, to the birds, to his own aching hand. He even comes to love the creature he's trying to catch.

We won't spoil the ending, except to say the sea has its own plans for his prize.

Hemingway was famous for short, plain sentences, and this is the best place to see why. There are no fancy words. It's quick enough to read in an afternoon. The book helped win him the Nobel Prize in Literature in 1954.

"A man can be destroyed but not defeated."

The Old Man and the Sea · In plain words: you can lose what you fought for and still keep your dignity.

THREE BIG IDEAS FROM THE BOOK

Effort is its own reward

Santiago may not get to keep his fish, but he knows he fought well. The work itself meant something.

Respect your rivals

He calls the marlin his brother. You can compete hard and still admire the one you're up against.

One believer is enough

The boy's faith keeps the old man going. Sometimes one person in your corner makes all the difference.

THE TAKE · OUR OPINION

A divided Washington might be calmer for markets than you'd think

When one party runs the White House and the other runs Congress, big new laws become hard to pass. That sounds bad, and for many things it is. But investors often like it, because it means fewer sudden surprises: fewer sweeping tax changes, fewer abrupt new rules.

The worry this time is tech. Some traders fear a Democratic Congress could push for limits on the huge AI data centres that are using up power and land. That's a real risk for chip companies like AMD, and it could ripple through to Indian IT firms that sell AI services to American clients.

Our view: elections change the mood for a few days. Profits change prices over years. Watch whether companies keep growing, not who won a vote.

This is the Gazette's opinion, not financial advice.

MONEY IDEA OF THE DAY: SIMPLE VS COMPOUND

Simple interest pays you only on what you put in. Compound interest also pays you on the interest you've already earned.

₹1 lakh at 10% for 5 years earns ₹50,000 with simple interest, but ₹61,051 with compounding. Over 20 years the gap gets huge: about ₹2 lakh versus about ₹5.7 lakh.

Ten Words for Today

LEARN THEM, THEN USE ONE BEFORE DINNER

1 Bellwether noun · BEL-weth-er

Something that shows where a trend is heading. Originally the lead sheep in a flock, which wore a bell.

"AMD's results are a bellwether for the whole AI chip industry."

2 Alacrity noun · uh-LAK-ri-tee

Cheerful eagerness and speed in doing something.

"She accepted the new project with alacrity."

3 Tenacious adj. · tuh-NAY-shus

Refusing to give up; holding on firmly.

"Like Hemingway's fisherman, a tenacious founder keeps rowing."

4 Pellucid adj. · puh-LOO-sid

Very clear, either to see through or to understand.

"Her pellucid explanation made compound interest click."

5 Magnanimous adj. · mag-NAN-i-mus

Generous and forgiving, especially towards a rival or someone you've beaten.

"The winning candidate was magnanimous in her victory speech."

6 Quixotic adj. · kwik-SOT-ik

Idealistic in a way that's noble but not very practical.

"Rowing that far out alone looked quixotic to the other fishermen."

7 Insouciant adj. · in-SOO-see-unt

Relaxed and unbothered, sometimes a little too much.

"He was insouciant about the deadline until the night before."

8 Perfunctory adj. · per-FUNK-tuh-ree

Done quickly and without real care, just to get it over with.

"A perfunctory 'thanks' is worse than a sincere one-line email."

9 Mendacious adj. · men-DAY-shus

Not telling the truth; lying.

"The ad's mendacious claims were soon exposed."

10 Lugubrious adj. · luh-GOO-bree-us

Looking or sounding sad and gloomy, often in an exaggerated way.

"The lugubrious music made the short film feel twice as long."

TODAY'S CHALLENGE

Try bellwether at work today. Any time you spot one company, product or person that hints at a bigger trend, you've found a bellwether.

How to iron a shirt like a pro

A crisp shirt makes you look sharper in every meeting. Follow the same order every time and it takes under ten minutes.

WHAT YOU'LL NEED

Steam iron	Ironing board or a towel on a table	Water spray bottle	A hanger

1 Check the label

Look at the tag inside the shirt. Cotton and linen can take a hot iron. Polyester, silk and blends need a low setting. If unsure, start low and test on the inside of the hem.

2 Start slightly damp

Iron the shirt while it's a little damp, or mist it with the spray bottle. Damp fabric smooths out much faster than dry.

3 Collar first

Open the collar flat. Iron the underside first, from the points towards the middle, then flip and do the outside. This stops creases forming at the tips.

4 Cuffs, then sleeves

Unbutton the cuffs and iron them flat, inside then outside. Lay each sleeve flat along its seam and iron from the shoulder down to the cuff.

5 Shoulders (the yoke)

Slide one shoulder over the narrow end of the board and iron it, then the other. This is the panel across the top of the back.

6 The back

Lay the back flat across the board and iron from top to bottom in long, smooth strokes.

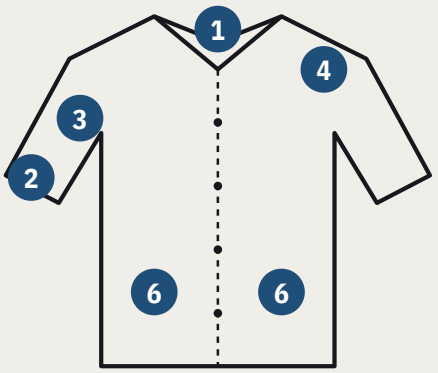

7 The front panels

Do the button side last, using the iron's tip to get around (never over) the buttons. Then iron the other front panel.

8 Hang it straight away

Put it on a hanger and do up the top button. Let it cool for a few minutes before wearing, so the new creases don't form.

THE ORDER, AT A GLANCE

5 = the back (not shown)

Small parts first, big flat parts last, so you don't re-crease what you've already done.

⚠ SAFETY FIRST

- Stand the iron upright when you pause. Never leave it face-down on fabric.
- Keep the cord away from children and pets, and never let it dangle off the board.
- Never iron clothes while someone is wearing them.
- Unplug it when you're done and let it cool upright before storing.

PRO TIP

No iron? Hang the shirt in the bathroom while you take a hot shower. The steam relaxes light creases in about 15 minutes.
